These schools met for the 1st time LY and the 517 vds all'd by NMST was their 2nd most all ssn, while the 30 FD's they all'd was the most in a gm. However, that yardage total was the 3rd lowest of the ssn for GS. Despite the Aggies having an atrocious rush D, they usually compete quite well against teams that run the triple option offense. They defeated Cal Poly by 18 pts LY, lost to NM by just 3 & 9 pts the LY, along with limiting the Eagles LY as mentioned above, only losing by a td & 2pt conv. Speaking of rushing, NMST has one of the underrated RB's in the nation as Larry Rose already has over 1,000 this ssn and was limited to just 9 carries LW so he could be fresh for conf play. The Aggies will need him as QB Rogers is out with a broken thumb and HC Martin has not decided whether to use Jeanty or Allen as his replacement. Both alternated snaps LW, but one will be the given reigns here. The Eagles have a huge game on deck at App St, which could decide the conference race and I'll call for NMST to keep it closer then the experts in the desert think against the triple option.
