West Virginia has a solid team this year but I've won by going against them the last two weeks (at Oklahoma, home vs Oklahoma St). This is their toughest match up of the current three game stretch. They now have to travel back to the state of Texas. West Virginia lost their last trip to Waco, 73-42. Baylor may be the freshest team in the country. They have gotten off to big leads and rested their starters in the second half's. They are still averaging 64 points per game and their defense is holding foes to 114 yards below their season average. This is the toughest opponent they've faced this year so they will be pumped up. Did I mention that West Virginia dealt them their only regular season loss last year and that kept them out of the playoffs?
